

URSULA ROSE

BLUR Gallery (Linda Hodges Gallery)

September 2018

Seattle artist Ursula Rose has shown work in over 15 venues, from cafes to artist venues and galleries. Most recently her work was shown in Out Of Sight '17, followed by a solo show at Party Hat Gallery, a group show at The Factory this past spring, and original work at the Frye Art Museum Store on view now.

She works primarily in watercolor with occasional forays into gouache. Her work combines the beautiful and haunted; she strives to show the underside of our emotions, the beauty in what's broken and lost, and the light that filters in-between.

"Ursula Rose's watercolors are ghostly, yet full of life and character, capturing in a few cloudlike pools of color something crucial yet inarticulate about her subjects. The images emerge before your eyes like the moment when tea leaves or coffee grounds in the bottom of a cup become a fortune." -- Sarah Galvin
